Massachusetts Business Roundtable Welcomes Katelyn Hamilton as Assistant Director

The Massachusetts Business Roundtable is pleased to welcome Katelyn Hamilton to serve as its new Assistant Director. The Roundtable is a non-profit public policy organization comprised of more than 80 CEOs and senior business leaders from large employers across the Commonwealth working to strengthen the state's economic vitality.

Katelyn most recently served as Communications Specialist at the New England Council, where she worked on the Council's social media, membership recruitment and federal policy issues. She graduated Colby College in 2017 with a BA majoring in government and minoring in managerial economics. She also served as government affairs intern with the Roundtable in 2016 and as a government affairs intern for Roundtable member Steward Healthcare in 2015.

"The Roundtable is a small organization that punches above its weight in the policy arena, and the addition of Katelyn will have an immediate positive impact to strengthen MBR's work with public and private sector leaders," said Roundtable Chair Bob Rivers, Chair & CEO of Eastern Bank.

"Katelyn excelled in her work with the New England Council, and we look forward to her many contributions to expand the Roundtable's advocacy on key issues and challenges facing the business community," said MBR Vice Chair Cathy Minehan, Principal at Arlington Advisory Partners.

"The Roundtable and its member companies are thrilled to welcome Katelyn back to the organization in her new role as Assistant Director," said Executive Director JD Chesloff. "Katelyn is a talented professional who will be an integral part of developing the Roundtable's public policy agenda, expanding our social media presence, and working with our members to pursue the organization's mission. I look forward to her joining the team and bringing a fresh perspective to our work."

The Massachusetts Business Roundtable is a non-partisan public policy organization comprised of CEOs and senior executives from major employers that collectively employ more than 250,000 people across the state.
